Printmaking in the Expanded Field

Printmaking in the Expanded Field took place at Oslo National Academy of Arts september 15-18th, 2015. The seminar took 5 years to develop and was initiated by professor Jan Pettersson, head of the Printmaking Department, at the Department for Art and Craft at The Oslo National Academy of the Arts and in collaboration with Trykkeriet in Bergen and Päivikki Kallio, Professor of Printmaking at the Finnish Academy of Fine Arts, Helsinki Finland..

The aim with this 4 day seminar was through invitation of a number of prominent artists, theorists, curators and museum representatives on a global basis to discuss the situation of printmaking today out from the tradition, the theoretical aspect, the historical and what is happening and can happen on the global arena in the future. With " Printmaking in the Expanded Field " we want to create a focused seminar with the Nordic field as the primary impact. Our Nordic Institutions of education has a common cultural platform which creates an excellent base for the further development of the media also in an international context.

The following speakers were invited and took part in the seminar:

Päivikki Kallio, Artist/Professor of Printmaking at the Finnish Academy of Fine Arts, Finland , Sofie Dederen , Director Frans Masereel Centrum,Belgium, Nina Bondeson, Sweden, Artist former professor at HDK, Sweden, Eli Okkenhaug, Chief Curator, KODE Art Museums of Bergen, Norway, Svend-Allan Sörensen, Artist, Denmark, Carlos Capelan, Artist & Professor, Uruguay/Sweden, Breda Skrjanec, Curator, Slovenia, Thomas Kilpper, Germany, Artist & Professor at Bergen National Academy of Art and Design, Norway, Ruth Pelzer, Artist, Theorist / Doctor of Philosophy and lecturer in Visual Culture in the School of Art at Edinburgh College of Art, The University of Edinburgh, United Kingdom/Germany, Susan Tallman, USA, Editor- in-chief of Art in Print, Author the Contemporary Print, Adjunct Associate Professor, Art History at The School of the Art Institute of Chicago, USA, Jenn Law, Artist , writer and researcher, Canada, Miler Lagos, Artist, Colombia, Margaret A. Miller, Professor and Director Graphicstudio/ University of South Florida, USA , Andrew Raftery, Artist/Professor printmaking RISD, USA, Sarah Suzuki, USA, Associate Curator in the Department of Prints and Illustrated Books at The Museum of Modern Art, New York,USA, Victoria Browne,Artist/Director Kaleid Editions, London,UK and Associate Professor Printmaking and Drawing at KHiO, Max Schumann, Associate Director of Printed Matter Inc, USA,

During the last 20 years there has been a large number of exhibitions across the Nordic boarder lines together with that teachers within the media have visited their neighbours to do workshops and exchange knowledge to groups of students and colleagues. We are of the opinion that this seminar will be able to collect and systematize our resources and at the same time continue the development within the field also in an international perspective. The way to pair up concepts like originality and repetition, singularity and multiplicity, reproducible and unique, falsified and authentic, copy and original (as Rosalind E. Krauss points out 1) involves central aspects of contemporary culture. Modern man has in many ways an identity split between the serious depth of the past and the seductive surface of the contemporary. The printmaking medias often chameleon-like and imitating properties has the capability to precisely express, the ambivalence, the fusion and the sharing of our culture. A number of the artists mentioned below share this perspective. Printmaking is a very strong player within today's contemporary context. Often we do not relate certain things to printmaking but the fact is that it is highly present. Artist like Gardar Eide Einarsson works with print-related painting and other objects. The last few years the print has surfaced in different constellations at the large Biennials and other art events around the world. At Documenta 13, 2012 the following projects were shown: Marc Dions Xylotek, an installation of engraved books of wood from the 1700's; Toril Johannessens Extraordinary Popular Delusions a series of silkscreens; Emily Jacirs billboard installation with texts from Jewish National Library Jerusalem Jewish National Library Jerusalem Ida Appelborg presents a selection of personal texts in the form of printed catalogues, Xerox-copies and posters. Paul Chans volumes-incompleteset small paintings on un-read books; Michael Rakowitz installation Stone books consisting of engraved books in stone together with fire damaged books from the bombing of Fridericianum in Kassel in 1941 and Andrea Büttners classical installation with woodcuts in Neue Galerie.

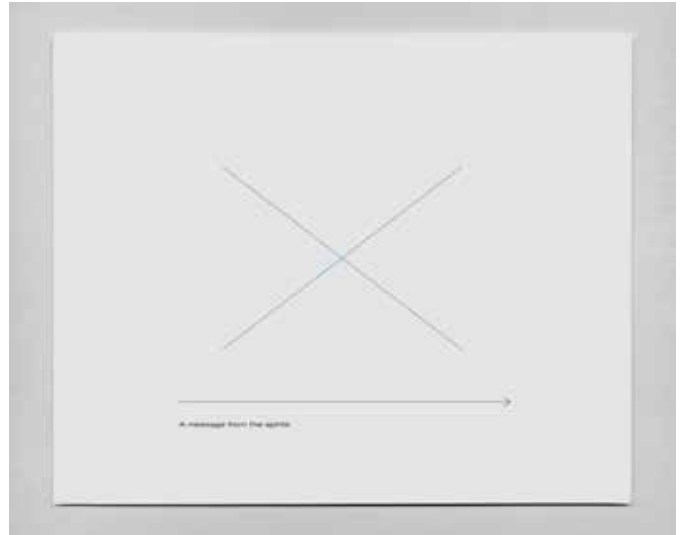

Intensions

Today in our visual culture the presence of printed materials is so obvious that it is more or less unnoticed. It is not the result of a craft but points to a form of dissemination. The result is what we call print which derives from the act of printmaking but does not pertain dissemination.

Printmaking in the expanded field occurs as soon as we start to question tradition and art history together with

Marc Dions, Xylotek

Toril Johannessen ,Extraordinary Popular Delusions

Emily Jacir , billboard installation

the problematic of the set criteria that modernism founded. The radical changes within the field of printmaking the last 20 years have totally changed the approach towards the media. Printmaking is now an art form that expands into sculpture, performance, clothes, installation, the commercial aspect, cyberspace, artist books, multiples, 3D prototyped objects/prints, ready-mades, newspapers etc. The result is a cross pollination which in its turn points to the total reflection of today's contemporary art.

How does this affect the historical aspect of the memory of printmaking? How will it affect the future of prints? Is the expanded field perceived as a threat or as a possibility? Will it help to re-configure the traditional aspects of it?

Delimitations

The Print has played a significant role within the Contemporary art and yet from the 20th century up to the present days it has usually not been properly included or represented in the theoretical discussions concerning its significance and paradoxical yet leading role in the art field. Art historian Kathryn Kramer points to the lack of both the historical writing of printmaking (apart from the chronicles of a technical nature) and a neglect of the medium in art theory and criticism.-The Walter Benjamin's essay The Work of Art in the Age of Mechanical Reproduction, is often quoted, often misunderstood. It has come to constitute practically the main theoretical reference or base for research and writing about print. -Michael Kimmelman postulates in total contradiction to Walter Benjamin that "in the next millennium, the allure of the original will increase, not decline, and in direct proportion to the availability of reproductions. Too often at printmaking conferences and seminars didactic information is offered together with a display of matrixes and tools as a surrogate or replacement of the fundamental contemporary scene and discussion around what the contemporary printing media really is.

Columbian curator Jose Rocca says "Printmaking is a tool, and a powerful one at that. But only by acknowledging that its intrinsic qualities make it ideal for saying something that cannot be said equally well in other media can print be reclaimed from technique-as-content and be understood as content through technique". Why leave an imprint? This is a question seldom asked by printmakers. Printmaking, for many, remains concerned solely with technique, a medium focused on the how and not the what. The craft aspect of printmaking has often made this obscure.

Many printmakers define themselves through the media "I print therefore I am". Print is but one of the tools available that art has at its disposal for achieving a result. The Cuban curator and critic Gerardo Mosquera notes the following, "Our 'artistic' print posits a contradiction: it is a reproductive medium that self-limits its reproductive possibilities. Preoccupied with defining the realm of printmaking exclusively from a technical standpoint, print-makers have indeed printed themselves into a proverbial corner.

New Insight and Artistic result

Another fact related to certain aspects of printmaking which cannot be overlooked, is the presence of the digitally printed image which has transformed print into a neutral, massive and democratised term. Art today is characterised by the fact that it employs and combines knowledge from several different fields; works of art are crossing traditional boundaries and utilizing new and different effects. Knowledge that was previously reserved for specialists in one particular discipline is now accessible to artists from all disciplines. This consolidates the way for new artistic idioms based on a large range of competence in the field of print.

The Context of the seminar

Print implies a shift from the optical to the haptic, from a purely visual regime to the centrality of the physical act of transferring a trace by direct contact. Printmaking shares photography's status as index of a physical referent. But unlike photography, which is literally "an emanation from the referent," as Roland Barthes pointed out, an imprint acquires its indexical quality by contiguity: one surface is in physical contact with another. French philosopher and art historian Georges Didi-Huberman posed a number of key questions in his essay published in conjunction with the exhibition L'Empreinte at the Pompidou Center in 1997. In that show, and its resulting catalogue, Didi-Huberman exhibited an understanding of the heuristic quality of imprinting, stressing its process over its results. In a later work, he extended his inquiry into the medium, exploring the motivation behind the prevalence of print for modern and contemporary artists.

After that the chock of the digital advent has calmed down an overbuilding crosspollination has occurred within the media which in its turn has normalized and become part of the concept of printmaking. It is this aspect that is in front of us when we in our contemporary society bring up the discussion around print and its accelerating advent into the contemporary art scene on a world wide basis. As Judith Hecker, Assistant Curator of Prints at MoMA, has remarked: Installation, performance, and video art, photography, and new-media technology (including digitization, virtual reality, and the internet) have expanded artistic vocabularies, and artists are increasingly drawn back to the printed series because it enables further exploration into the multiple, developmental, and spatial structures of these other mediums.

Printmaking in the Expanded Field took on the following 6 topics listed below to be discussed.

- Visual delight and collapsing strategies
- Contemporary Constituencies of print
- Print in public space
- The expanded field
- Leaving an imprint
- Dissemination of knowledge

There are 2 main project strands:

1. The Seminar, consisting of lectures and discussions.

In putting together the seminar the following work methods have been used:

Close study of previously made seminars and the relation of their contexts. This is based on both actually having been a participant and also by studying broadcasted seminars on the internet and listening to Pod casts. This ensures the direction of the platform for the seminar.

In depth study in selecting lecturers which are a selection of artists, curators, theorists, professors, art directors, print directors and museum representatives.

All participating 17 lecturers had been contacted by email during May and June 2014. The email consisted of an invitation to the seminar and a flyer .

The seminar was open to a larger audience and situated in the schools theater.

The seminar was advertised on KHiO's website where one could register for it.

The seminar ran over 4 days, starting with Day 1. registration at KHiO's reception area 11.00 -15.00 then Guided Tour of KHiO 12.30 & 14.00, followed by opening of the seminar at 16.00, at 16.45 the Opening Panel start, then panel discussion at 18.15, then drinks, food and mingle at 19.15. The following 3 days consisted of lectures from 2 panels wednesday and thursday and the closing panel on friday were Her Majesty Queen Sonja of Norway joined us. The seminar finished with drinks, food and mingle at 19.00 hrs the friday evening.

The participating lecturers were divided up in 6 panels. Each panel consists of 3 lecturers and had been given a theme (see context) and a moderator. In preparing for the seminar it was the job of the moderators to coordinate his or her panel. Each panel member had 25 minutes at their disposal. After each panel presentation was finished it is closed with a panel discussion. In between each panel there were ample time for lunch. The seminar closed on the 4th day with drinks, food and mingling.

2. Output from lecturers were collected in the form of abstracts, full lecture, video and audio recordings was streamed live over the internet during the seminar days. Furthermore the texts will be published in the form of a publication. The recordings of the seminar are put up on the schools you.tube link on the web.

The main target group of the seminar "Printmaking in the expanded field" were the higher art educations in Denmark, Norway, Finland, Iceland and Sweden – staff and students, other staff members of the Kuno organizations, the national print organizations in Scandinavia their boards and members and artist interested in the media. The invitation were be sent out as soon as the necessary funding had been cleared. The first invitation contained information regarding the date, location and price for arrangement. The second invitation was a reminder containing sign up information and detailed program for the seminar as well as recommended accommodations.

Seminar participants payed themselves for travel and accommodation. The seminar was affiliated with KHiO canteen concerning lunch for lecturers.

In addition to all the above-mentioned organizations, the seminar was advertised in, Swedish Grafik Nytt, Printmaking today, England and Art in Print, USA.

Furthermore the seminar was highlighted and communicated the following ways:

1. Through the KHiO website
2. Through communication with a flyer by email to all printmaking societies in Scandinavia.
3. Through communication with a flyer by email to all printmaking societies in Europe and the rest of the world.
4. Through advertising in various Print and Art magazines
5. Through Face book
6. Through the project managers and the staff groups contacts
7. Through the lecturers' contacts
8. A publication from the seminar will be put together consisting of an introduction by the project manager the full lecture with text and images from each of the invited lecturers.

Note1. Concerning this there will be sent in a separate application for funding to produce a publication from the seminar.

9. The seminar was recorded both with video and audio and was uploaded on the internet. All the 4 seminar days can be seen on youtube.

Project Manager:

Professor Jan Pettersson, head of the printmaking department at KHiO. Pettersson is an artist/printmaker working with printmaking in the expanded field as his current KU/FOU research project and other print projects within the field. His current projects deal with the field of photography especially the objectivity of photography within the print media. This has been done through in-depth research within different areas through the development of art projects. His recent research takes on the expanded field of printmaking and he has earlier published his research "Photogravure an Archaeological Research" at KHiB 2007 when he was affiliated with KHiB as Associate Professor 1995-2007. Pettersson has also held the position as Dean at the Academy in Bergen, built up and been head of the printmaking department, he has also been on KHiB's board, been the head of the board for the Norwegian Printmaking society 2009 -12. Pettersson is also former director of and initiator of Trykkeriet Centre for Contemporary print. During the build up of Trykkeriet he collected almost 3,5 million kr for the project from among other Bergen Kommune, Norsk kulturråd, Hordaland Fylke, Norske Grafikere .

Dear Jan and to all of your team,

Congratulations and thank you too - it was an enormous undertaking you managed to do, I am looking forward to the publication.

I hope the students gain from it. all the very best

Ruth Pelzer Montada Lecturer Panel 3

Dear Jan,

THANK YOU and everybody who made the seminar possible!

It was superbly organised and structured (enough time in between sessions to be able to converse more informally with various people, including the students, yet each 'chunk' was also substantial to allow for depth). The 'composition' of each panel ensured that different perspectives were covered, yet the carefully selected, varied backgrounds and practices of panel members also complemented and enriched each other. The mix between participants and speakers from Nordic countries (I include myself here) and international speakers was also very well chosen. The symposium certainly has inspired my confidence in the strength and vibrancy of the field of graphic arts and its future. Thank you Olga, Theo and Holger for stimulating discussion and keeping the show going.

And, not to forget the super food and drinks. And - throwing a queen into the bargain. (Sorry, I meant to say it was a great pleasure and bonus to learn that the Queen of Norway is such an active supporter of printmaking.)

The Youtube recordings are fantastic too – and of great quality (even though it means one's hums and haws are all faithfully recorded).

All the best to all of you, greetings from Scotland,

Dear Jan,

I am about to send you the invoice and the final version of the essay, but before I do that, I want to thank you again. The seminar was truly enriching. I learned so much and had a great deal to think about when I returned to the US.

Also, I was very impressed by the faculty and programs at your school. I will encourage my best students to apply to your program.

I would like to send some catalogs to you and the moderators. I noticed the address on the contract. Is that the best place to send them?

I hope to see you in the future.
