INSIDE/OUTSIDE part III

During my master studies, my purpose is exploring about, how people were affected emotionally while the civil war was ongoing? And, I have chosen the Nepalese Civil War as a backdrop to investigate my issue. The war had occurred from 1996 – 2006, between the Government and the Maoists. It is my home country too. To achieve my goal, in the last autumn, I have visited most affected people and place in Nepal and interviewed nine people who were directly involved in the civil war. After hearing all those people's experience being part of the civil war, I have chosen a specific moment of a person and want to translate that moment at here in a totally different time, place and atmosphere through the senses.

I invite people to explore the above situation through the sensory.

It is a real experience of a lady from Nepal who was directly involved in the Nepalese civil war from 1996 to 2006.

*Here, my heart was about to blast out of fear.
They were going to kill me today.
It was the end of my revolution, here all my dreams came to an end.
In the verge of life and death one hour passed.
.....
That one hour in the rhododendron bushes..... I was searching my life.*
